Social Entrepreneurship in India
2017 Study Tours and Internships

Bannari Amman Institute of Technology in Sathyamangalam, Tamil Nadu is collaborating with educational developers, Giles Brooker Group to facilitate interdisciplinary study tours to south India for current and past students, and practitioners, in Business and Social Development.

Aim of Study Tour

Social entrepreneurship is booming in India. Opportunities are growing for companies to make Corporate Social Responsibility investments in programmes developed by social entrepreneurs with benefits accruing to all parties. International social entrepreneurs can play a big role in finding effective ways for companies to strategically target and support social and community development both in India and in their home countries.

The study tours and internships will help you understand social support relationships and systems, both public and private, which operate in India and how these are evolving from historic, current and future perspectives.

They will help you to identify opportunities for international organisations engaging with India can actively engage with and support social entrepreneurship activities that also support their wider strategies in India.

The programmes, in June and November, will include a short 2 week internship opportunity with an Indian company or NGO involved in community development to enable the deeper understanding and development of relationships that will come from being embedded in an organisation.
